"Action expresses priorities." — Ghandi

PRIORITIES

What do you want to do with your life?

That can seem like a broad question when you're very young, and like a narrow, harrowing question when you're more mature. But it's an essential question, and one that we're asked of in karate.

How does black belt training relate to how your life heads?
It has to do with priorities.

Ripple Effect's curriculum incorporates several priority-provoking cornerstones that, beyond the kicking and punching fundamentals, help kids and adults set and achieve goals. These include word of the month worksheets, Word of the Belt recitations, mat chats, and (at black belt tests) Leadership presentations that address your focused work to aid your community.

Just like at a board break, black belts learn to focus their effort to smash through to their goals.

To break a board or accomplish huge societal goals, we need to focus on priorities. Go for it black belts.

"I'm smiling the whole time. It's fun, it's challenging, and the instructors and staff...we couldn't ask for better." Amy Lou Dement

"My family consistently remarks that belonging to the Ripple Effect family is "the best money we spend every month." The instructors and staff are incredible: positive, motivational, encouraging and challenging." Zach Baze
